LeagueBoss.com to simplify golf league arrangement

Local golfer John Gordon has found a new way to develop his favorite pastime into a new business venture. Donald Monteleone and Gordon are the entrepreneurs behind LeagueBoss.com, an online software product created to help golf league administrators organize and communicate with league members and golf course personnel. Hanson, Inc., is supplying the web strategy and site design; WTA Consulting, a division of Warnock Tanner & Associates Inc., is doing the site programming.

LeagueBoss.com's plan is to be a one-stop superset of features for individuals, teams and events, which allows each group their own secure online software. The site will enable the user to track leagues, events, individual or team play by providing access to information such as schedules, players, scores, statistics, performance, locations, rules, finances, and related links.

Anyone who's ever managed a league or tried to arrange golf outings or tournaments knows how complicated it can become. "It can take many hours a week," stated Gordon, president and CEO of LeagueBoss.com. "I can estimate LeagueBoss.com can cut the time administrators and statisticians spend doing paperwork and making phone calls by seventy percent."

The league administrators will have the ability to create a secure personalized web site for their league, which allows anyone from anywhere the ability to enter and access league information. Additionally, the site will cater to the needs of the individual participant from the standpoint of tracking their individual play in multiple leagues or external to league play.

Finally, the site will address the needs of sports centers, event organizers and the participants of these events, providing them a web accessible environment to set up, enter and publish all the details and outcome of each event.

John Gordon and Don Monteleone are co-founders and co-owners of Critical Business Analysis, Inc., (CBA) a project management firm specializing in sales of Primavera project management software and related implementation, integration and educational services. CBA was founded in 1984 and currently employs a staff of 15 people with skills in corporate sales, professional consulting and software training. Customers range from small consulting companies to high tech start-ups to the Fortune 500 including General Motors, Ford Motor Company, EDS, First Energy, American Electric Power, Consumers Energy, Dow Corning, Marathon Ashland Petroleum, The Limited and fourthchannel.

According to Gordon, he has been involved in many golf leagues over the years and is very excited about the opportunity to work in a leisure industry market providing a solution to a common problem. His skill-set includes entrepreneur, sales, project management, information technology, customer service, public relations, and finance. Gordon earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Construction Management at Bowling Green State University.

Monteleone is an active member of the Project Management Institute and a former chapter chairman of the Society of Manufacturing Engineers. He has delivered many talks at various professional societies and is a guest lecturer at several universities. Monteleone's skill-set includes entrepreneur, sales, project management, information technology, product development, employee relations, and quality control. Monteleone earned a Bachelor of Science in Manufacturing Technology and Master of Business Administration degrees at Bowling Green State University.
